Studymate / Lockdown Browser Contract - proposal to eliminate, new feature in Canvas to create flashcards, replicates features of Studymate, Lockdown not practical due to readily available additional devices, would save a couple thousand dollars a year, perhaps add a question to the survey or look into smaller license, Films on Demand could be added as well, cleaner integration in WYSIWYG

Technology issues related to course standards: Locked down course in Canvas, all or nothing, can be at course level

Idea: create a master course, controlled by a course "owner", copy that course and add all instructors of that course as designers, copy and give that course to instructors without the ability to change the course they are teaching, they could only change the course that is shared by instructors, if other instructors and course owner like the addition, push it out to all sections.

Survey - in hands of crystal, Nursing dept very interested in Canvas and other technology

Online course open house will be part of Faculty Institute (will be recorded)

re-instituting EOL blog

Professional Development - A lot of interest in "Technology - in the classroom": student response devices, SmartBoard, Canvas training that is not online and not geared toward online teaching,

From Melissa Rizzuto:

Canvas now has an integration library and Edison Online has added the Khan Academy extension to our account. Instructors can now search for and add Khan Academy videos directly into Canvas courses: <http://help.instructure.com/forums/20630178-extension-integration-library>

Canvas Information Station should be ready to launch at Faculty Institute (March 31st).
