This introductory course in art history is designed for the non-art major for the purpose of giving an understanding to the world of visual arts. Emphasis is on the analysis of formal aspects such as composition, form, space, medium, and technique as well as the social, political, and economic contexts of artists and their art-making processes. Classes are visually intensive and include viewing art work in the Bob Rauschenberg Gallery (on Lee campus), slides, short videos, CD-ROMs and DVDs. This course includes an analysis of visual art made in a variety of media, potentially including painting, sculpture, photography, drawing, video art, and new media.

Section III, Justification for proposal

Provide justification (below) for each change on this proposed curriculum action. Visiting the Rauschenberg Presents a problem for our online students not living in the area. The new proposed sentence allows some room for the professor to come up with reasonable assignments to fulfill the criteria and eliminated the soon dated CD-ROMS, and DVDs.
