Section IV, Justification for proposal

Provide justification (below) for each change on this proposed curriculum action.
The current course title of DEP 2004: Human Growth and Development is unwieldy and redundant. It seems confusing to a subset of students who refer to it as “Humanities” rather than correctly identifying it as a Social Science course. The title Lifespan Development more succinctly reflects the content of the course. Lifespan Development is among several titles for DEP 2004 used by Florida colleges and universities. This title fits the FL SCNS description for DEP 2004: Principles of Development: Psy/Life Span and poses no difficulties in transferability (FL State info appended).

Shelia,

In posing that question to the State Coordinator who oversees Health, her Answer is:
"No, that would not present any problem at all for transferability. The course title is at the discretion of individual institutions. As long as the course content remains the same, the course will transfer with no problems."

So change away.

Respectfully,
Jeffrey D. Peterman

Subject: DEP 2004 title change query

Jeffrey,

The Psychology faculty are considering a title change for DEP 2004 from Human Growth and Development to Lifespan Development. We're wondering if this change would raise any transferability issues.

I ran a course search in SCNS, and found that FL schools use a number of different titles for DEP 2004, including Lifespan Development. However, most FL schools use Human Growth and Development or Developmental Psychology. As you can see below, the point of this course is to cover development across the human lifespan, so we'd like the title to reflect that.
